Rep. Pat Colloton:

Imagine one day you're at work and you get phone call. Your daughter has been in a car wreck. They won't tell you anything more. You hurry to the hospital to find out she is dead. This is any parents nightmare. After all the heartache of a funeral, comes the court case against the driver of the car she was riding in. But now you find out she is not a victim because the charge is just a traffic violation. To me any one who is dead because of someone else's neglect is a victim. But to make things worse the driver has to pay $60.00. Sixty dollars for killing four people (my daughter, niece and two other girls). No one asked us, the parents, how we felt about any of this. We were not able to speak to the court.

Please push for, and support this bill.

From a grieving parent,

Brian Mason
