

I have a now 26 yr. old son who was not diagnosed with dyslexia until he was 13 years old. We had many hours of struggle with homework until that time and I'm sure had this been diagnosed earlier he would have been able to excel in life much better than his current situation. So my desire is to get early detection and testing through the school system or reading books that include alphabetic phonics for all children. Thank you. Geri Watson-Augusta
